HERE TODAY, GONE TOMORROW

It's hard to believe January 2010 is gone forever. Already the year is flying by. I'm quite sure I will only have to blink and Christmas will be here again! With that same sense of time flying, I woke up this morning with sad yet sweet thoughts about my mom. It has been one year since my mother went home to be with the Lord. February 2, 2009 was a day of great sorrow for our family, yet great rejoicing for her release from pain and suffering. How do you ever fully say goodbye to a loved one? We chose to focus on her unimaginable joy in His presence instead of our grief. As Believers we said, "See you again soon" instead of "Goodbye." Today may represent one year without her, but I am also one year closer to seeing her again!

With that said, I am looking forward to the March 2010 Women's Leadership Training conference in Bucharest, where I will introduce the newly produced Romanian translation of Beth Moore's "Believing God". As I have shared several times in past newsletters, this translated study is dedicated to my mother's loving memory. "She believed God." Thank you, thank you, thank you to those who gave a gift to Beautiful Gate Translations in her loving memory. You are about to see her name shared around Romania as a testament of God's goodness in her life. Below is a picture of Mom with one of our sons, David, at my 50th birthday party. Sweet memories....

Besides the Saturday, March 13th leadership training conference, we have now decided to expand the conference to include a Friday night area-wide gathering to highlight the celebration week of the International Day of Women. The Voice of the Gospel radio program will be broadcasting the conference and will "advertise" for us. The cool part of the Friday night session will be that Christian women will invite a non-Christian friend to join them for a time of fellowship, singing, testimonies, and a short Gospel message. Will you please pray the Lord's blessing and anointing on the conference? This type of gathering with women of all denominations, socio-economic backgrounds and ages is pretty unusual for Eastern Romania. Our Romanian team is thrilled about this new development, and we are hoping the gatherings will become a quarterly tradition. We still have financial needs to fund, so we are also praying for His provision.

In His grace, Paulette

My Sweet Mom and son, David
