"THE BEST IS YET TO COME!"

Have you ever felt like you were living in a whirlwind or maybe a revolving door? The effect is the same—ending up where you started. I confess that I don't want 2010 to be a year where I end up where I started spiritually. I want to see more growth, maturity, humility, fruit of the Spirit made evident in my life.

With so many things on this year's agenda, I cannot afford to not spend more time in the Word and prayer. However, the temptation is ever before me to "hit the ground running" instead of "hit the floor praying". My heart's desire this year is for all of us to seek Him more diligently, laying aside things which distract from that goal. Then everything will fall into place. Without that, all things become chaotic. We surrender—He pulls us through to victory.

I have some exciting news just around the corner and will share it soon. Until then, I just want to say how much I appreciate you. I took a few minutes this holiday season to ponder how far Beautiful Gate Translations has come over the past eight years. Only God. Only God. I want to put together a flyer soon which will highlight each of the translated materials as shown in the left hand column.

Finally, we are planning the March 2010 Women's Leadership conference in Bucharest, so would really appreciate your prayers for this effort. Am I the only one struggling with staying on task and staying focused? This getting older thing sure doesn't sit well with me!

Let's join in continued prayer for the people in Haiti who are suffering so much from this earthquake. Also, for the relief and rescue workers as they face the devastation. Our consolation is that God is sovereign.

In His grace, Paulette
